LINDBERGH IS WAITING FOR GOOD WEATHER

NERVES OF SOME FLIERS NEAR BREAKING

BERT ACOSTA TRIES OUT THE BIG MONOPLANE OF BYRD

LINDBERGH SAYS HE'S READY AND NEEDS NO MORE TESTS

By M. D. TRACY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, May 17.—Commander Richard E. Byrd's big Fokker monoplane today proved its capability of carrying a 12,000 pound load when it passed successfully through the second of its weight-carrying tests, preliminary to the New York to Paris flight.

The Fokker was in the air about 20 minutes with 12,000 pounds of sand and gravel aboard.

The only incident of the flight was when the ballast was accidentally released, before alighting, directly over the Curtiss airplane factory at Roosevelt field. The gravel crashed through windows and skylights of the factory, doing some damage but injuring no one.

Byrd will give his plane a third test with a still heavier cargo tonight. It must prove itself capable of carrying 14,000 pounds before it is accepted as ready for the trans-Atlantic flight.

Charles Lindbergh, the lone westerner who has become the popular hero of New York among the aviators, spent the morning testing and inspecting his plane and particularly the motor, and then announced that he was ready to go as soon as the weather would permit.

After noon he returned to his hotel, following by an admiring crowd, shook hands with a score of people, all of whom were strangers to him, and planned to spend the later afternoon and evening in Paterson, N. J.

Weather reports up to 1 P. M. were unfavorable to the flight.

While serenely hung over Byrd's camp, the hangar of the Bellanca plane, in which Lloyd Bertaud and Clarence Chamberlin expect to fly over-seas presented a different scene. The Bellanca organization has been under tremendous strain since Chamberlin and Acosta thrust it into fame with their record breaking endurance flight a few weeks ago.

The strain has now come to the front and has brought on arguments, disagreements and public statements which seemed likely to disrupt all plans at any moment. The heavy radio equipment installed on the plane has been removed for the second time, which gave rise to rather bitter disagreement. Its effect on the delicate navigating instruments forced the removal.

Then the arguments over contracts of the two fliers remained unsettled. Once it was announced an agreement had been reached but numerous conferences yesterday failed to put it in writing. One of the conferences included the wives of the two aviators and their attorney.

So today began in the Bellanca camp with a statement from C. W. Nutt, attorney for Bertaud, charging that Charles A. Levine, financial backer of the flight, was "seeking to delay the flight until someone else has started."

He maintained that Levine had failed to live up to agreements he had made but added that Bertaud would not under any circumstances withdraw from the flight and if necessary would take his claims to the courts.

Incidentally, he said, Bertaud had offered to buy the Bellanca plane from Levine but that Levine wanted $25,000 for it and that was too much.

Lindbergh continued to be the popular idol among the three groups of fliers. He spent yesterday and part of the evening in New York. People recognized him on the streets and crowds followed him during the latter part of his visit to the city, until he blushed redder and redder and finally sought seclusion in an office building. He was a unique figure as he went about the business of getting his passports—something the aviators must have before they land in France—dressed in his flying clothes and bare-headed. He explained he was traveling light and brought no other clothing with him.

The Lindbergh camp at Curtiss Field is as different from that of the Bellanca organization as that of Byrd. While various parties in the Bellanca hangar squabbled, Lindbergh, aged 25, was proclaimed as sole arbiter of everything by F. B.

GRAIN OF CORN LODGES IN LUNG AND KILLS GIRL

St. Louis, Mo., May 17.—(UP)—The body of 5-year-old Delina Alphin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Alphin, Pocahontas, Ark., was to be taken home for burial today following an unsuccessful attempt to remove a grain of corn from her lung.

The little girl was rushed here last week for removal of a grain of corn lodged in her bronchial tube. This operation was successful but later another grain was discovered in her lung.

2 FIRE TRUCKS COLLIDE IN FALSE ALARM

TWO FIREMEN KILLED IN ACCIDENT AT MINNEAPOLIS

APPARATUS MET FULL TILT AT A STREET INTERSECTION

Minneapolis, Minn., May 17.—(UP)—Two firemen are dead and eight are suffering lacerations and bruises today following a collision of two fire trucks which answered a false alarm.

A fire alarm box was rung in by a workman who was cleaning the mechanism late Monday and in relaying the alarm it is believed telephone orders were misunderstood. Apparatus of two companies set out for different destinations. They met at a street intersection and two of the speeding trucks crashed and piled up in a heap of debris.

Louis Malchow, Jr., 34, of station No. 4, was instantly killed and J. J. McGuire, 57, of station No. 2, died a short time later at a hospital.

The injured were cared for by members of their companies on other trucks. None were seriously hurt.

L. C. Rich, employee of the Cedar Lake Ice Company reported to authorities when he learned of the accident. He said he cleaned the box of cobwebs but did not know he had set off the alarm.

Malchow is survived by the widow and two young daughters. The widow and three children survive McGuire.

TAX REDUCTION CONCLUSIONS NOT MADE PUBLIC

Washington, May 17.—(UP)—President Coolidge believes it is too early to reach any settled conclusion regarding tax reduction next year, it was announced at the White House today.

Mr. Coolidge thinks conditions when congress reconvenes in December and the amount of the surplus then must be known before any project for tax reduction can be begun.

He had indicated previously, however, that he anticipated a tax cut next year.

TOO MANY BEAUTY CONTESTS AND NOT ENOUGH BRAINS

Denver, Colo., May 17.—(UP)—There are too many beauty contests and not enough brain contests these days, in the opinion of the Rev. L. M. Edwards, pastor of the fashionable Trinity Methodist church.

"We are in a veritable hysteria of beauty contests," the Rev. Edwards said today. "I suppose we may soon expect contests for the most beautiful manicurist, the most beautiful elevator pilot and the most beautiful lady barber."

The Rev. Edwards said that he did not want "to seem prudish," but that "the degree of undress of most of the contestants in the so-called beauty contests is the height of absurdity."

"This whole question of physical charm has been made a ridiculous farce," he continued. "If we must have contests, let them be contests of brain or of ability."

BARE INTIMATE DETAILS OF THE KELLY ROMANCE

STATE MOVES TO BRING MURDER TRIAL TO A SPEEDY CLOSE

3 WITNESSES, ACCORDING TO PROSECUTION, REMAIN TO BE CALLED

By DAN CAMPBELL (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Los Angeles, Cal., May 17.—With the most intimate details of his romance with the beautiful Dorothy Mackaye, actress, bared from the witness stand, the state today moved to bring to a speedy close its case against Paul Kelly, screen juvenile, on trial for the murder of Ray Raymond, musical comedy star.

Three witnesses, according to the prosecution attorneys, remain to be called. One is the rather mannish Helen Wilkinson, constant companion of Miss Mackaye, who is to be questioned about the "gin and jazz" parties in Kelly's apartment.

Miss Wilkinson startled an already perplexed theatrical colony here a few days ago when she calmly admitted that it was she who was in love with Kelly and not Miss Mackaye. In letters and messages exchanged between the comely auburn-haired actress and the screen juvenile, Miss Wilkinson was referred to as "old grandma."

As large a crowd as jammed the court room here to lend a curious ear to the story "Jungle," Kelly's Japanese houseboy, had to tell, as expected to be on hand to hear Miss Wilkinson attempt to shield her companion.

The host of movie extras, soda dispensers, shoe clerks, and an occasional "well known" in the cinema world, yesterday afternoon leaned forward in their seats when "Jungle" walked rapidly to the witness stand. They had been promised "spicy" testimony by the state's attorneys. The light Oriental didn't disappoint them.

Carefully avoiding the glances of his former master, "Jungle" launched into his story. He told of seeing Dorothy Mackaye at Kelly's luxurious apartment as many as five times a week.

The crowd, however, refused to get excited at this testimony. They had heard practically the same story from Miss Mackaye who admitted on the stand that she had attended gin parties at Kelly's apartment.

Nervous under the concentrated glare of hundreds of eyes, the Oriental houseboy shifted uneasily in his seat as Chief Prosecutor Forrest Murray asked loudly:

"Did you know Miss Mackaye stayed all night at Kelly's apartment?"

"Yes, sir," came the reluctant reply.

This was something else and the crowd again began to show interest.

In answer to Murray's next question, "Jungle" said he had on two or three different occasions seen Kelly and Miss Mackaye in bed together.

"What were you doing in the bed room?" asked Murray.

"Delivering water," was the reply.

Superior Judge Burnell glanced sharply at the crowd when a buzz of hushed voices swept over the court room. A moment or two later he joined in the laughter that greeted "Jungle's" statement that Kelly and Miss Mackaye often conversed in a language he could not understand, but which he believed was called "Hollywood Latin," which he later identified as "Pig Latin."

On the afternoon that Kelly is said to have left his apartment for the Raymond home and engaged in a fist fight with the stage actor, "Jungle" testified he had served six rounds of gin and water to the guests at the party.

They included Miss Mackaye, Miss Wilkinson, Max Wagner, a friend of Kelly's, and the screen star. Kelly, the houseboy said, returned at 9 o'clock that night.

Miss Mackaye was spared the ordeal of hearing "Jungle's" intimate recital. Her attorney said she was near another nervous collapse and the court excused her, after she had

BLANKET INDICTMENTS AGAINST FIVE

CHARGES AGAINST 3 OF 5 DEFENDANTS IN KERRICK CASE MAY BE DISMISSED

THE MURDER OF TOM KERRICK, SCREEN COWBOY, BEFORE THE COURT

Los Angeles, May 17.—(UP)—Charges against three of the five defendants on trial for the murder of Tom Kerrick, screen cowboy, probably will be dismissed when the case is resumed in court this afternoon, the district attorney's office indicated.

Kerrick was shot to death in his Hollywood home during what police described as a wild drinking orgy. Failure to obtain a coherent story from any of the witnesses to the shooting brought a blanket indictment against all five persons who were present at the party.

Those indicted were Sarah Kerrick, the widow, Anita Davis, Iris Burns and Henry Isabell, motion picture extras, and Joe Hunt, Arizona cowboy.

The trial swung open late yesterday. A jury of nine men and three women was selected in the record time of one hour and 45 minutes, and the shooting scene was re-enacted in the Kerrick home before the first day's session was adjourned.

The charges against Miss Burns, Miss Davis and Hunt, it was intimated, would be dropped and they will be used as state witnesses.

Mrs. Kerrick admitted before the coroner's jury she had gone after a revolver during the party but said her husband was killed when the weapon was discharged accidentally while she was struggling over its possession with another guest.

Statements of other participants in the party were conflicting and hazy. Police who arrested the five early in the morning after the shooting said it was nearly 14 hours before any of them were sober enough to be questioned.

The trial is scheduled to be resumed at 2 P. M.

Peoria, Ill., May 17.—(UP)—The body of Iver Erickson, a tailor, who came here from Duluth, Minn., a year ago, was found floating in the Illinois river this morning. His forehead had been crushed and there is belief of foul play. He was last seen on May 4, when he received $75 by telegraph from relatives in Duluth. He took a day off from work and it is believed he was murdered and robbed somewhere along the river front.

concluded her testimony of a farewell party given in San Francisco for her husband who was starting on a road trip.

The defense is expected to get the case Thursday or Friday.

PEOPLE CLIMB TO SAFETY ON NEARBY LEVEES

BREAK OCCURRED NEAR SMALL TOWN OF MELVILLE

LOCATED ON WEST BANK OF ATCHAFAYALA RIVER

By E. W. LEWIS (United Press Staff Correspondent)

New Orleans, La., May 17.—(UP)—Another barrier against the flood waters toppled early today, marooning 500 inhabitants of Melville, a small town on the west bank of the Atchafayala river.

The telephone operator in the now flood-surrounded town said everyone was taking to the levees and the embankment of the Texas & Pacific railroad.

Boats are being rushed across the flooded "sugar bowl" to rescue townspeople, but Red Cross officials urged refugees to flee across the railroad bridge spanning the Atchafayala.

The break occurred within the corporate limits of the town which was under six feet of water at 7 A. M.

No word has been received here concerning the fate of 300 refugees reported trapped on a hill near Morrow in St. Landry parish, a district now rapidly filling with waters from the 50-mile stretch of crevasses at Big Bend. Boats from Opelousas were expected to reach the hill this morning.

Opelousas, La., May 17.—A makeshift relief train of five cars, loaded with food and 20 boats ran through water today toward stricken Melville.

It will proceed as far as possible on the tracks of the Texas & Pacific. The boats will then be unloaded and start across country for the flood-surrounded town.

Reports reaching here said the railroad embankment at Melville was crowded with automobiles, household goods and refugees.

Unconfirmed reports that 200 persons were marooned in Big Cane, now under eight feet of water, resulted in the dispatch of additional boats there.

New Orleans, La., May 17.—Bowling along at a clumsy gait, flood waters of the Mississippi river apparently have failed to swerve back into the main channel from the inundated Tensas Basin and are moving in full power southward down the Atchafayala river through the "sugar bowl" country.

This was the opinion expressed today by I. M. Cline, meteorologist in charge of the New Orleans weather bureau, based largely on the 50-mile area of crevasses along Big Bend. The Mississippi levees below Old river will not have to undergo the expected crest strain, Cline believes.

In other words, the danger of new breaks below Old river and north and south of Baton Rouge has been considerably lessened, to what extent no engineer dares say.

MAN AND WIFE HELD ON CHARGE OF SLAYING MAN

Red Wing, Minn., May 17.—(UP)—Walter H. Abbott, 31, and his wife are held in the county jail here today in connection with the killing of D. A. Alderman, 31, at Pine Island, Minn.

Alderman died at a hospital in Rochester from bullet wounds inflicted by Abbott while the former was walking in front of Abbott's feed mill at Pine Island last night.

No charges have yet been placed against Abbott and his wife.

Abbott is alleged to have shot Alderman after his wife admitted improper relations with the latter.

PRES. COOLIDGE FORCED TO BED WITH SLIGHT COLD

Washington, May 17.—(UP)—President Coolidge, forced to bed yesterday with a slight cold, today was permitted by his personal physician to attend a cabinet meeting.

The president remained at the temporary White House until Dr. James F. Connelley had called to diagnose the bronchial disorder which caused Mr. Coolidge to be ordered to bed yesterday. Dr. Connelley said there was nothing serious about the ailment.

It was explained the president has been subject to such colds in the past.

SENATOR REED SEEKS SPECIAL SESSION SOON

WANTS CONGRESS TO MEET TO CONSIDER FLOOD RELIEF MEASURES

SENATOR CLAIMS SENTIMENT FOR SAME IS GAINING STRENGTH

Kansas City, Mo., May 17.—(UP)—Senator James A. Reed's second appeal to members of congress to assist him in bringing into being a special session of the national body to consider flood relief measures, is gaining strength daily, it was indicated at Reed's office here today.

Seventy-five replies to telegrams sent Saturday night had been received this morning. Reed wired President Coolidge asking him to reconsider his decision not to call a special session at this time, and the Missouriian also wired all senators and representatives asking for their assistance in calling the session.

Of the replies, more than half have expressed favorable opinions for the special session. However, there is a party delineation becoming apparent as more telegrams arrive.

Replies from the most of the republicans who have answered oppose the special session, while the democrats generally favor the means to bring about some form of relief for flood sufferers of the Mississippi.

WOLF BOUNTIES MONEY MAILED TO COUNTIES

St. Paul, May 17.—(UP)—Ray P. Chase, state auditor, today mailed checks totalling $75,782.50 to 52 counties in Minnesota as the state's share for payment of wolf bounties.

Approximately one-fourth of the total was sent to St. Louis county.

Full grown wolves killed pay $15 and cubs $6, according to state game laws.

PRISONER DIED OF SPINAL MENINGITIS

Leavenworth, Kan., May 17.—(UP)—The body of Dan S. Mayne, 33, son of M. H. Mayne of Minneapolis, is being held at the federal penitentiary here today pending word from the Minnesota state.

Mayne died last night of spinal meningitis. He had been serving a two year term on a charge of violation of the Harrison drug act.

MT. VESUVIUS IN ERUPTION ALARMS ITALY

Naples, May 17.—(UP)—Mount Vesuvius was in eruption today, hurling jets of incandescent lapilli 100 yards in the air at intervals of a minute, while ominous rumblings were heard from the crater.

The increased activity of the ancient volcano is a seasonal occurrence, but observers were alarmed lest a rupture be torn in the southwest base of the crater, in which case much damage was feared. Such a rupture was likely, Professor Malladra, director of the Vesuvian observatory, said.

The intermittent streams of glassy lava pebbles shooting into the air from the crater made a brilliant display.

TO OUTWIT THE BLUE DEFENDERS AND LAND ARMY

BLACK FLEET HAS UNTIL FRIDAY AFTERNOON TO INVADE COAST

SINCE MIDNIGHT SHIPS OF BLUE FLEET HAVE SCOUTED FROM BASES

Aboard the U. S. S. Seattle off the New England Coast, May 17.—(UP)—The Black fleet of 78 warships today was maneuvering in the North Atlantic, endeavoring to outwit a much weaker Blue defending fleet and land a paper army of 75,000 men somewhere in New England.

The Black fleet has until Friday afternoon to invade the coast. If the Blues can succeed in keeping the enemy at bay until then, it will win honors and Americans can breathe a sigh of relief, secure in the knowledge that even a superior enemy force could not pounce upon New England over night.

Since midnight, ships of the Blue fleet have been scouting from their bases, seeking to discover the exact whereabouts of the Blacks. Only by anticipating the place where the attack is to occur and massing the defense forces there can the Blues hope to win.

"Radio Silence" was in order for the Blues from last midnight on, for the inferiority of numbers made it necessary for the defending ships to hide their position or risk being overwhelmed by the enemy.

The aircraft carrier Langley gave its planes a thorough test 50 miles off Sandy Hook yesterday. Fourteen scouting planes took the air from her decks in nine minutes, relanding after an hour's flight.

Official observers of the war games include Admiral Charles F. Hughes, Maj. Gen. Hanson Ely, commandant of the army war college, and Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur.

The theory of the attack is that if an invader could force his way into New England, isolating that rich district from the rest of the country, complete occupation of the region and subsequent capture of New York would be easy.

SCORES OF ARRESTS TO FOLLOW REVOLT OF INTRENCHERADO

Iloilo, P. I., May 17.—(UP)—Scores of arrests had been made today by the Philippine constabulary to quell what was characterized as a "threatened revolt" led by Intrencherado, picturesque native leader.

Intrencherado, self-styled "emperor of the Philippines," is said to have a powerful influence over some 400,000 natives.

With reports of the killing of several natives and a policeman in skirmishes between Intrencherado's followers and authorities trickling in from the province of occidental Negros, rumors of a widespread insurrection gained added credence when Governor General Leonard Wood arrived here from Manila.

General Wood said he came to investigate the revolutionary situation. He summoned Intrencherado for a conference, but the native leader failed to appear. It was said he feared a "trap." He was ordered arrested.

Many residents of the Philippines consider Intrencherado a man maddened by his dreams of Napoleonic dominance. He has been living for several weeks quietly near Iloilo. If authorities apprehend him, it was feared he would call upon his followers to resist.

DE PINEDO HOPS OFF FROM CHICAGO FOR MONTREAL

Chicago, May 17.—(UP)—Commander Francesco de Pinedo, Italian world flyer, hopped off from Chicago today at 6:09 a. m., central standard time, leaving the United States behind him.

De Pinedo's next stop, barring a forced landing, will be Montreal—from where he will continue eastward and then will attempt to hop across the Atlantic.

The daring Italian pilot was held up in Chicago one full day by short circuits in his plane.

Kerrick was shot to death in his Hollywood home during what police described as a wild drinking orgy. Failure to obtain a coherent story from any of the witnesses to the shooting brought a blanket indictment against all five persons who were present at the party.

Those indicted were Sarah Kerrick, the widow, Anita Davis, Iris Burns and Henry Isbell, motion picture extras, and Joe Hunt, Arizona cowboy.

The trial swung open late yesterday. A jury of nine men and three women was selected in the record time of one hour and 45 minutes, and the shooting scene was re-enacted in the Kerrick home before the first day's session was adjourned.

The charges against Miss Burns, Miss Davis and Hunt, it was intimated, would be dropped and they will be used as state witnesses.

Mrs. Kerrick admitted before the coroner's jury she had gone after a revolver during the party but said her husband was killed when the weapon was discharged accidentally while she was struggling over its possession with another guest.

Statements of other participants in the party were conflicting and hazy. Police who arrested the five early in the morning after the shooting said it was nearly 14 hours before any of them were sober enough to be questioned.

The trial is scheduled to be resumed at 2 P. M.

BODY OF TAILOR FOUND FLOATING IN ILLINOIS RIVER

Peoria, Ill., May 17.—(UP)—The body of Iver Erickson, a tailor, who came here from Duluth, Minn., a year ago, was found floating in the Illinois river this morning. His forehead had been crushed and there is belief of foul play. He was last seen on May 4, when he received $75 by telegram from relatives in Duluth. He took a day off from work and it is believed he was murdered and robbed somewhere along the river front.

TWO YOUTHS DROWN WHEN THEIR CANOE CAPSIZES IN LAKE

Cook, Minn., May 17.—(UP)—Relatives were notified today of the drowning of Jorgen Klostad, 22, Duluth, and William Warner, 18, Whitewater, Wis. The two youths were drowned when their canoe capsized in Lake Kabetogama near here late Monday. Klostad was a district forest ranger.

He concluded her testimony of a farewell party given in San Francisco for her husband who was starting on a road trip.

The defense is expected to get the case Thursday or Friday.

PEOPLE CLIMB TO SAFETY ON NEARBY LEVEES

BREAK OCCURRED NEAR SMALL TOWN OF MELVILLE

LOCATED ON WEST BANK OF ATCHAFALYA RIVER

By E. W. LEWIS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New Orleans, La., May 17.—(UP)—Another barrier against the flood waters toppled early today, marooning 500 inhabitants of Melville, a small town on the west bank of the Atchafalaya river.

The telephone operator in the now flood-surrounded town said everyone was taking to the levees and the embankment of the Texas & Pacific railroad.

Boats are being rushed across the flooded "sugar bowl" to rescue townspeople, but Red Cross officials urged refugees to flee across the railroad bridge spanning the Atchafalaya.

The break occurred within the corporate limits of the town which was under six feet of water at 7 A. M.

No word has been received here concerning the fate of 300 refugees reported trapped on a hill near Morrow in St. Landry parish, a district now rapidly filling with waters from the 50-mile stretch of crevasses at Big Bend. Boats from Opelousas were expected to reach the hill this morning.

Opelousas, La., May 17.—A makeshift relief train of five cars, loaded with food and 20 boats ran through water today toward stricken Melville.

It will proceed as far as possible on the tracks of the Texas & Pacific. The boats will then be unloaded and start across country for the flood-surrounded town.

Reports reaching here said the railroad embankment at Melville was crowded with automobiles, household goods and refugees.

Unconfirmed reports that 200 persons were marooned in Big Cane, now under eight feet of water, resulted in the dispatch of additional boats there.

New Orleans, La., May 17.—Bowl-ing along at a clumsy gait, flood waters of the Mississippi river apparently have failed to swerve back into the main channel from the inundated Tensas Basin and are moving in full power southward down the Atchafalaya river through the "sugar bowl" country.

This was the opinion expressed today by I. M. Cline, meteorologist in charge of the New Orleans weather bureau, based largely on the 50-mile area of crevasses along Big Bend. The Mississippi levees below Old river will not have to undergo the expected crest strain, Cline believes.

In other words, the danger of new breaks below Old river and north and south of Baton Rouge has been considerably lessened, to what extent no engineer dares say.

MAN AND WIFE HELD ON CHARGE OF SLAYING MAN

Red Wing, Minn., May 17.—(UP)—Walter H. Abbott, 31, and his wife are held in the county jail here today in connection with the killing of D. A. Alderman, 31, at Pine Island, Minn. Alderman died at a hospital in Rochester from bullet wounds inflicted by Abbott while the former was walking in front of Abbott's feed mill at Pine Island last night.

No charges have yet been placed against Abbott and his wife. Abbott is alleged to have shot Alderman after his wife admitted improper relations with the latter.

The couple were arrested by Marshal Rew of Pine Island.

Alderman was a painter and substitute mail carrier at the Goodhue county town. He was taken to a physician there by the Abbotts and was then removed to Rochester where he died.

PRES. COOLIDGE FORCED TO BED WITH SLIGHT COLD

Washington, May 17.—(UP)—President Coolidge, forced to bed yesterday with a slight cold, today was permitted by his personal physician to attend a cabinet meeting.

The president remained at the temporary White House until Dr. James F. Coupal had called to diagnose the bronchial disorder which caused Mr. Coolidge to be ordered to bed yesterday. Dr. Coupal said there was nothing serious about the ailment.

It was explained the president has been subject to such colds in the past.

SENATOR REED SEEKS SPECIAL SESSION SOON

WANTS CONGRESS TO MEET TO CONSIDER FLOOD RELIEF MEASURES

SENATOR CLAIMS SENTIMENT FOR SAME IS GAINING STRENGTH

Kansas City, Mo., May 17.—(UP)—Senator James A. Reed's second appeal to members of congress to assist him in bringing into being a special session of the national body to consider flood relief measures, is gaining strength daily, it was indicated at Reed's office here today.

Seventy-five replies to telegrams sent Saturday night had been received this morning. Reed wired President Coolidge asking him to reconsider his decision not to call a special session at this time, and the Missourian also wired all senators and representatives asking for their assistance in calling the session.

Of the replies, more than half have expressed favorable opinions for the special session. However, there is a party delineation becoming apparent as more telegrams arrive.

Replies from the most of the republicans who have answered oppose the special session, while the democrats generally favor the means to bring about some form of relief for flood sufferers of the Mississippi.

WOLF BOUNTIES MONEY MAILED TO COUNTIES

St. Paul, May 17.—(UP)—Ray P. Chase, state auditor, today mailed checks totalling $75,782.50 to 52 counties in Minnesota as the state's share for payment of wolf bounties.

Approximately one-fourth of the total was sent to St. Louis county.

Full grown wolves killed pays $15 and cubs $6, according to state game laws.

PRISONER DIED OF SPINAL MENINGITIS

Leavenworth, Kan., May 17.—(UP)—The body of Dan S. Mayne, 33, son of M. H. Mayne of Minneapolis, is being held at the federal penitentiary here today pending word from the Minnesota city.

Mayne died last night of spinal meningitis. He had been serving a two year term on a charge of violation of the Harrison drug act.

MT. VESUVIUS IN ERUPTION ALARMS ITALY

Naples, May 17.—(UP)—Mount Vesuvius was in eruption today, hurling jets of incandescent lapilli 100 yards in the air at intervals of a minute, while ominous rumblings were heard from the crater.

The increased activity of the ancient volcano is a seasonal occurrence, but observers were alarmed lest a rupture be torn in the southwest base of the crater, in which case much damage was feared. Such a rupture was likely, Professor Malladra, director of the Vesuvius observatory, said.

The intermittent streams of glassy lava pebbles shooting into the air from the crater made a brilliant display.

TO OUTWIT THE BLUE DEFENDERS AND LAND ARMY

BLACK FLEET HAS UNTIL FRIDAY AFTERNOON TO INVADE COAST

SINCE MIDNIGHT SHIPS OF BLUE FLEET HAVE SCOUTED FROM BASES

Aboard the U. S. S. Seattle off the New England Coast, May 17.—(UP)—The Black fleet of 78 warships today was maneuvering in the North Atlantic, endeavoring to outwit a much weaker Blue defending fleet and land a paper army of 75,000 men somewhere in New England.

The Black fleet has until Friday afternoon to invade the coast. If the Blues can succeed in keeping the enemy at bay until then, it will win honors and Americans can breathe a sigh of relief, secure in the knowledge that even a superior enemy force could not pounce upon New England over night.

Since midnight, ships of the Blue fleet have been scouting from their bases, seeking to discover the exact whereabouts of the Blacks. Only by anticipating the place where the attack is to occur and massing the defense forces there can the Blues hope to win.

"Radio Silence" was in order for the Blues from last midnight on, for the inferiority of numbers made it necessary for the defending ships to hide their position or risk being overwhelmed by the enemy.

The aircraft carrier Langley gave its planes a thorough test 50 miles off Sandy Hook yesterday. Fourteen scouting planes took the air from her decks in nine minutes, relanding after an hour's flight.

Official observers of the war games include Admiral Charles F. Hughes, Maj. Gen. Hanson Ely, commandant of the army war college, and Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur.

The theory of the attack is that if an invader could force his way into New England, isolating that rich district from the rest of the country, complete occupation of the region and subsequent capture of New York would be easy.

SCORES OF ARRESTS TO FOLLOW REVOLT OF INTRENCHERADO

Hilo, P. I., May 17.—(UP)—Scores of arrests had been made today by the Philippine constabulary to quell what was characterized as a "threatened revolt" led by Intrencherado, picturesque native leader.

Intrencherado, self-styled "emperor of the Philippines," is said to have a powerful influence over some 400,000 natives.

With reports of the killing of several natives and a policeman in skirmishes between Intrencherado's followers and authorities trickling in from the province of occidental Negros, rumors of a widespread insurrection gained added credence when Governor General Leonard Wood arrived here from Manila.

General Wood said he came to investigate the revolutionary situation. He summoned Intrencherado for a conference, but the native leader failed to appear. It was said he feared a "trap." He was ordered arrested.

Many residents of the Philippines consider Intrencherado a man madened by his dreams of Napoleonic dominance. He has been living for several weeks quietly near Hilo. If authorities apprehend him, it was feared he would call upon his followers to resist.

DE PINEDO HOPS OFF FROM CHICAGO FOR MONTREAL

Chicago, May 17.—(UP)—Commander Francesco de Pinedo, Italian world flyer, hopped off from Chicago today at 6:09 a. m., central standard time, leaving the United States behind him.

De Pinedo's next stop, barring a forced landing, will be Montreal—from where he will continue eastward and then attempt to hop across the Atlantic.

The daring Italian pilot was held up in Chicago one full day by short circuits in his plane.

BURNED TO DEATH
WHEN PLANE FALLS

Harrisburg, May 17.—(UP)—Major Harold Geiger, commander of the Aberdeen, Md., army flying field, was burned to death at the Middletown air depot near here today when his plane fell 75 feet and burst into flames. The accident occurred just as Major Geiger was leaving the Middletown field to return to Aberdeen.

His plane reached a height of 75 feet when the engine stalled and the machine crashed directly in front of the main hangars. It narrowly missed hitting a group of soldiers.

Danger in Gasoline

Gasoline generates its own spark of fire through friction, such as that caused by washing in a machine, and even though there is no other flame produced, the machine, the cleaning fluids and the garments are quite capable in themselves of causing a terrific explosion. The press records such accidents almost daily.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES MEET

Biennial Meeting to be Held in Omaha, Neb., May 25 to June 1

C. BRUHN IS DELEGATE

"The Pilgrim Spirit in the Awakening World" is General Theme

The National Council of Congregational Churches of the United States, which meets in Omaha, Neb., May 25th to June 1st, will bring together over 2,000 pastors, church officials, and leading laymen and laywomen from every State in the Union and from many foreign countries.

The general theme for the Council is "The Pilgrim Spirit in the Awakening World" by which is meant that in the active membership of the Congregational Churches there is a spirit like that of the Pilgrim Fathers with all its originality, adventure, and devotion as it faces a world that is new in its social, political, and international relationships, new in its knowledge of ideals.

Fewer but larger churches: At this meeting announcement will be made by Rev. Charles Emerson Burton, D. D., the General Secretary of the denomination, that for the last two years the denomination has each year made a most significant net gain in membership and at the same time has shown a net loss in the number of churches. In the two years there has been a decrease of 72 in the number of churches while the membership has increased over 35,000. This significant development in the denomination of fewer but larger churches is the result of two fundamental principles which characterize the life and work of Congregationalists—the first is the devotion of the churches to an effective program of evangelism, and the second is their determination that the denomination shall stand firmly by its position that it will have no part in bringing about or in continuing an "over churching" condition in any community.

For the last eight or nine years the Congregationalists have been co-operating in carrying through on a nation-wide scale a program of pastoral evangelism which has for its object the enlisting of men and women of goodwill and of spiritual lives in the work and service of the church. During these years the net membership has increased from 808,000 to 914,000—a growth of 104,000. Along with this spirit of evangelism among the churches there is also a very real desire to cooperate with all other religious bodies to discontinue any church that is not needed and merge little churches of various denominations into a strong community church which will meet the religious needs of the community.

Among noteworthy speakers for the program are Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter of Hartford, Conn., Dr. Herman F. Swartz of Berkeley, Calif., Dr. Ozofo S. Davis of Chicago, Roger Babson of Boston, Fred B. Smith of New York, Carl Vrooman of Illinois, Mayor Bertha K. Landes of Seattle, Prof. L. A. Weigle of New Haven, Dr. Timothy Lew of China. There will be missionaries present from fourteen different foreign countries who will report concerning the work in their various countries, and the future possibilities for Christian service.

The Council will face many items of important business; the merger of the various denominational boards into two great organizations will be advanced, and programs for men's work, international relations, general education, social conditions, and like interests in connection with the work of the churches. The problems facing Christian workers in Mexico, China, Turkey, India, and other countries will be presented and discussed by men and women who know the situations.

In connection with this meeting of the National Council there will be held the annual meetings of The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, The Congregational Education Society, The Congregational Publishing Society, The Congregational Church Extension Boards, The American Missionary Association, The Congregational Ministerial Board, and the Congregational Foundation for Education.

Christian Bruhn of this city is one of the two delegates from Duluth association to this national convention, the other delegate is Rev. Noble Elderkin of Pilgrim church Duluth. This is the highest honor that can be conferred on a layman. Mr. Bruhn was chosen to this honor at the last district meeting at Hackensack.

Mrs. Bruhn is an associate member and will accompany Mr. Bruhn. They will leave May 24.

USE POTASH FOR QUALITY VEGETABLES

Potash is the fertilizer for quality in vegetables, particularly in those vegetables whose fruits or roots are used for food.

Wood ashes form the best potash fertilizer for the garden, but wood ashes are not always available. However, hardwood ashes, which contain the highest percentage of potash of the various wood ashes, are sold by all the larger seed houses. Ashes from wood fires in the grate and from bonfires should be saved carefully and spread over the garden.

Some plant experts are now inclined to view plant diseases as due to deficiencies in the diet of the plants much as some human diseases are ascribed to the same cause. Plant troubles, particularly in tomatoes, are blamed on lack of potash. A balanced plant ration produces stocky, sturdy growth. An over-supply of nitrogen produces a heavy, sappy growth of foliage and delays maturity. The excessive use of nitrogen and phosphates without a proper proportion of potash will defeat its own end. It is therefore best in buying chemical fertilizers to buy the so-called complete or balanced fertilizers, the chemical formulae of which are indicated by figures showing the percentage of nitrogen, phosphates and potash. They are manufactured with a due regard to proper proportions and also are made up of both quick and slow acting fertilizers, so that their effect is fairly lasting.

It is safer to use these balanced fertilizers than to use too much nitrate. A little nitrate goes a long way, and it should be applied only when it is desired to speed up the growth of leaf and stem. Muria and sulphate of potash are commercial forms, and they are applied by sprinkling lightly around the plants in the same manner that nitrate is applied. They are especially good for bulb and root crops.

OPTIMISTIC REPORTS

FROM BEDSIDE OF GOV. CHRISTIANSON

St. Paul, May 17.—(UP)—Optimistic reports were given out at the home of Governor Theodore Christianson today.

The governor has been ill for several weeks and was under the care of his physician to guard against further complications.

Announcement was made that the governor expects to return to his duties at the capitol some time this week.

Governor Christianson plans to attend to routine matters and then leave for a fishing trip in northern Minnesota.

AWAITS TRIAL FOR MURDER OF '40 YEAR OLD LOVE'

St. Paul, May 17.—(UP)—Nick Schon, 75-year-old man, now awaiting trial in Ramsey county court for the murder of his "40-year-old love," today was branded as "a killer."

Ramsey county authorities today received word from W. R. Bishop of Ellendale, N. D., former sheriff of Dickey county, N. D., that Schon choked his wife to death in 1916 and then burned the body.

The aged man waived examination when arraigned in police court here on murder charges. He shot and killed Mrs. Ida Robinson, 40, mother of three children, a week ago and then called police.

Schon told authorities that he killed Mrs. Robinson because she "deceived" him by telling him she loved him and then extorted money.

Bishop reported to authorities here that he had just learned of Schon's escape and recognized pictures of him as the man he arrested for the killing of his wife. Schon then tried to commit suicide by slashing his throat with a razor, Bishop said.

The former sheriff reported that the aged man was given a sentence of 10 years in prison for manslaughter and was pardoned two years later.

MISSISSIPPI WATERWAY SYSTEM IS LAUDED

New York, May 17.—(UP)—Shippers were saved $18,000,000 on the carrying of 30,000,000 tons of freight during 1925 by the "Mississippi Waterway system" thus far developed, Edward A. Kimball of Des Moines, Iowa, said in a paper read today before the National Industrial council.

The government plan of dredging and deepening the river could be completed by expenditure of $120,000,000 in five years, he went on.

The prevalent floods in the lower Mississippi would have been lessened, Kimball added, by further development of the river.

ROMANCE ENDS IN MURDER AND SUICIDE

Los Angeles, May 17.—(UP)—The romance of a wealthy insurance broker and a 24-year-old stenographer culminated here today in murder and suicide.

With a revolver clutched in her right hand, the body of Margie Pike was found in an automobile. Slumped in the seat, dead, beside her was George E. Powell, Jr., vice-president of the Discount Corporation of California.

The couple, seated in an automobile parked in front of the girl's apartment, were discovered by a messenger boy. Police expressed belief that the girl killed Powell and then took her own life. A bottle of gin was on the running board of the car.

Little could be learned on the relationship between the man and girl, but from Myrtle Eaton, the dead girl's roommate, police obtained a note left by Miss Pike. It read:

"Dear Myrtle: 'If anything happens to me, threats have been made, send my trunk, clothes, etc., to my grand-eliminate some of the more sensational portions of the complaint."

At St. Lawrence, S. D. Why do people make blind threats? My mind is in a whirl. I am enclosing a blank check. My bank balance of $50, Marge."

A telegram found in Powell's pocket read: "Southern Pacific train No. 27, car N, berth 20, arrive 2:30 p. m. Much love. Terribly excited. (Signed) 'Ellen.'"

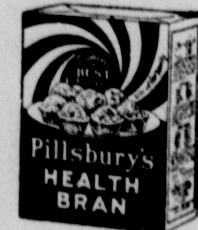

The telegram was dated New York.

ARGUMENTS ON DEMURRER IN CHAPLIN CASE

Los Angeles, May 17.—(UP)—Arguments on a demurrer to Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin's divorce suit were to be heard this afternoon, counsel for Charles Spencer Chaplin simultaneously seeking to have the complaint amended, on the grounds that it was ambiguous in content.

Both the motion to amend and the demurrer are regarded as attempts to eliminate some of the more sensational portions of the complaint.

Los Angeles, May 17.—(UP)—The romance of a wealthy insurance broker and a 24-year-old stenographer culminated here today in murder and suicide.

With a revolver clutched in her right hand, the body of Margie Pike was found in an automobile. Slumped in the seat, dead, beside her was George E. Powell, Jr., vice president of the Discount Corporation of California.

The couple, seated in an automobile parked in front of the girl's apartment, were discovered by a messenger boy. Police expressed belief that the girl killed Powell and then took her own life. A bottle of gin was on the running board of the car.

Little could be learned on the relationship between the man and girl, but from Myrtle Eaton, the dead girl's roommate, police obtained a note left by Miss Pike. It read:

"Dear Myrtle: 'If anything happens to me, threats have been made, send my trunk, clothes, etc., to my grand-eliminate some of the more sensational parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Roberts, portions of the complaint."

at St. Lawrence, S. D. Why do people make blind threats? My mind is in a whirl. I am enclosing a blank check. My bank balance of $50. Marge."

A telegram found in Powell's pocket read: "Southern Pacific train No. 27, car N, berth 20, arrive 2:30 p. m. Much love. Terribly excited. (Signed) 'Ellen.'"

The telegram was dated New York.

ARGUMENTS ON DEMURRER IN CHAPLIN CASE

Los Angeles, May 17.—(UP)—Arguments on a demurrer to Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin's divorce suit were to be heard this afternoon, counsel for Charles Spencer Chaplin simultaneously seeking to have the complaint amended, on the grounds that it was ambiguous in content.

Both the motion to amend and the demurrer are regarded as attempts to eliminate some of the more sensational portions of the complaint.

JAPANESE "EFFICIENCY" QUESTIONED

SOME time ago Carl Zapffe gave an instructive address at the Brainerd Rotary club in which he made iron the ruling factor in determining the importance commercially of any nation of the world. Coupled with the national resources was considered the efficiency of the people, their ability to make as well as market steel products.

Well, in taking up Japan, he found minor deposits of iron and very few facilities for the making of steel. Accordingly Japan is no competitor of the United States in the field of iron trade.

And now comes Samuel Untermyer, noted New York lawyer and investigator, who has been in Japan and who in an article in the New York Times gives his ideas of Japanese national spirit and their accomplishments in manufacturing and other spheres.

"The Japanese are a proud people and they are still chafing under the humiliation of our Exclusion act," said Mr. Untermyer. "They will never be reconciled to that indignity, and yet they do not seem to be resentful but to regard our action in sorrow rather than in anger. Judging from their expressions, they are deeply grateful to us for our prompt and generous assistance at the time of the earthquake, the effects of which are still almost as much in evidence as when that terrible catastrophe overtook them."

"Notwithstanding the rapid strides of the past half century, the people still live comparatively primitive lives. Their homes are barren of what we would regard as the creature-comforts of civilized life. We found the most wealthy of them even in the great cities shivering with cold in flimsily built, unheated houses without adequate clothing to protect them against the severity of their cold winters and huddling around small open earthen jars filled with ashes and a few sticks of charcoal."

"Although the principal hotels are equipped with registers they emit no heat and the wind whistles through the flimsy window panes."

"My conception of the Japanese was so different from the reality that the disillusion has come to me as a shock. I pictured them as shrewd, subtle, resourceful, industrious and highly intelligent. Industrious they are, but they are the antithesis of all the others. They are imitative to the nth degree and absurdly literal. If you send a shirt with a tear or a coat with a button missing to be copied they will make and deliver the new shirt or coat with the identical tear or missing button."

"I saw nothing in their industries that leads me to believe that we need reckon with them as serious business competitors for a long time to come, if ever, notwithstanding the cheapness of their labor, which, by the way, is growing perceptibly dearer and is higher today more than in many Continental countries. The cost of living is increasing here, as elsewhere, the people are poor and business at present is stagnant. They have not the capital to expand their industries, if they had the brains, and I insist that they lack intelligence and resourcefulness."

WATER LEVEL HEARINGS

IN connection with the preliminary examination of "headwaters of the Mississippi river, with a view to maintaining a minimum fixed head of water in all of the channels of this system at all times," ordered by Congress in the river and harbor act of January 21, 1927, public hearings will be held as follows:

At the County Courthouse, Brainerd, on Monday, June 6, 1927, at 3 o'clock p. m.

At the Automobile Club Rooms, Walker, on Tuesday, June 7, 1927, at 11 o'clock a. m.

At the County Courthouse, Grand Rapids, on Wednesday, June 8, 1927, at 9 o'clock a. m.

At the County Courthouse, Aitkin, on Wednesday, June 8, 1927, at 3 p. m.

All interested parties are invited to be present or to be represented at the above times and places, particularly navigation interests and the officials of any county, city, or local association whose interests may be affected.

Oral statements will be heard, but for accuracy of record all important facts and arguments should be submitted in writing, typewritten (in triplicate) if practicable, as the records of the hearings will be forwarded for consideration by the War Department. Written statements may be handed to R. C. Williams, Major, Corps of Engineers, District Engineer, at the hearings or mailed to him beforehand.

DAIRY FARMER HOPEFUL

THE dairy farmer has no cause to be concerned over the surplus of butter in storage at the present time, says the Park Rapids Enterprise. A year ago the butter in storage was given at 26,000,000 pounds. With the price considerably higher now than it was a year ago, the storage supply is given at less than one and a half million pounds.

Just enough on hand for a day's supply for the entire nation. The dairy farmer has reason to look at the future hopefully, as over-production is not liable to happen for a considerable time yet.

And when over-production comes, there is the opportunity that nearly all lines of business use to increase demand, the advertising of a product that has real merit.

BRAINERD ROTARY IS PROUD

BRAINERD Rotary is very proud these days and well it may be, for the luncheon club has a duly accredited delegate to International Rotary, George D. LaBar, who will attend the Ostend convention.

THE privilege of credit, says the Sherburn Advance Standard, is something to thank the small town merchant for. It would be a mighty fine thing for merchants if they could chuck their account books in the furnace and put the money derived from each day's business in the bank in the evening. But nobody expects them to. And, curiously enough, no one hesitates to pay cash to the mail order houses.

As reported in the Minneapolis Tribune, the steady spread of farm diversification, combined with this year's excellent crop prospects resulting from soil and moisture conditions, have made the northwest one of the bright spots in the business map of the United States, in the opinion of Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of New York,

Firestone Dealers

Have Purchased 100% More GUM-DIPPED TIRES

[This Year Compared With Same Period Last Year]

THE demand from car owners for Gum-Dipped Tires has given Firestone Dealers a large increase in volume enabling them to sell these tires to you at the lowest prices in history.

On the cars of motorists everywhere, these wonderful tires are delivering unheard-of long mileage with greater safety and comfort.

The Firestone Balloon Tread, scientifically designed three years ago, and unchanged today, follows the contour of the tire carcass with no excess rubber at the edges to cause "shoulder breaks". Narrow rider strips permit the tread to yield to depressions and cling to the road, preventing skidding. This tough, pliable tread has the wear-resisting qualities for thousands of extra miles.

Such a tread must be placed on a carcass with the qualifications to withstand the terrific flexing that this design permits. The Firestone carcass is made of cords dipped in a rubber solution which not only saturates and insulates every fiber of every cord, but unifies sidewalls with carcass, avoiding separation under the extreme flexing.

Many Firestone Dealers are prepared to offer you a liberal allowance for your old tires, on a new set of Gum-Dipped Tires to start the motoring season. To meet a demand for a low price tire and tube, Firestone designed and manufactures, for Firestone Dealers only, Oldfield Tires and Tubes, which carry the Standard Manufacturers' Guarantee

Why are there so many charming women today

Never before have there been so many charming women.

Wherever you go, you find them. Vivacious, happy, beautiful, delightfully dressed in the most exquisite taste.

Clear, pink-and-white complexion, luxurious, well-kept hair, gleaming teeth, trim athletic carriage—these are almost universal characteristics of American women of today.

Why?

At first thought it may sound absurd, but one of the most powerful teachers has been advertising.

Advertising has helped to teach us all that the real basis of beauty is health and cleanliness. We are the greatest users of soap and water in the world.

Advertising has taught us how to care for our teeth, our hair, our feet, our hands and our complexions.

Advertising has taught us how to dress—how to choose colors and fabrics and becoming styles.

Advertising has taught us how to talk, how to entertain.

One reason why so many women are charming is because so many women are reading advertising. From advertising they are learning the secrets of great beauty specialists. They are getting health information of inestimable value. They are learning the secrets of becoming dress from the famous designers of Paris and New York.

Advertising is one of the biggest reasons why so many women are so charming

Paul's church parish are asked to be present at the guild room tonight at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a young ladies guild.

There is considerable talk of organizing a tennis club in this city and a meeting will perhaps be called in a few days for that purpose.

The merchants and those interest-

Firestone Dealers

Have Purchased 100% More GUM-DIPPED TIRES

[This Year Compared With Same Period Last Year]

THE demand from car owners for Gum-Dipped Tires has given Firestone Dealers a large increase in volume enabling them to sell these tires to you at the lowest prices in history.

On the cars of motorists everywhere, these wonderful tires are delivering unheard-of long mileage with greater safety and comfort.

The Firestone Balloon Tread, scientifically designed three years ago, and unchanged today, follows the contour of the tire carcass with no excess rubber at the edges to cause "shoulder breaks". Narrow rider strips permit the tread to yield to depressions and cling to the road, preventing skidding. This tough, pliable tread has the wear-resisting qualities for thousands of extra miles.

Such a tread must be placed on a carcass with the qualifications to withstand the terrific flexing that this design permits. The Firestone carcass is made of cords dipped in a rubber solution which not only saturates and insulates every fiber of every cord, but unifies sidewalls with carcass, avoiding separation under the extreme flexing.

Many Firestone Dealers are prepared to offer you a liberal allowance for your old tires, on a new set of Gum-Dipped Tires to start the motoring season.

To meet a demand for a low price tire and tube, Firestone designed and manufactures, for Firestone Dealers only, Oldfield Tubes and Tubes, which carry the Standard Manufacturers' Guarantee

Why are there so many charming women today

Never before have there been so many charming women.

Wherever you go, you find them. Vivacious, happy, beautiful, delightfully dressed in the most exquisite taste.

Clear, pink-and-white complexion, luxurious, well-kept hair, gleaming teeth, trim athletic carriage—these are almost universal characteristics of American women of today.

Why?

At first thought it may sound absurd, but one of the most powerful teachers has been advertising.

Advertising has helped to teach us all that the real basis of beauty is health and cleanliness. We are the greatest users of soap and water in the world.

Advertising has taught us how to care for our teeth, our hair, our feet, our hands and our complexions.

Advertising has taught us how to dress—how to choose colors and fabrics and becoming styles.

Advertising has taught us how to talk, how to entertain.

One reason why so many women are charming is because so many women are reading advertising. From advertising they are learning the secrets of great beauty specialists. They are getting health information of inestimable value. They are learning the secrets of becoming dress from the famous designers of Paris and New York.

Advertising is one of the biggest reasons why so many women are so charming

VAN WALK, NORTHEAST MOUNDSTER, OPPOSED BY SANDGREN AND FOGELSTROM

I. O. O. F. GAINS TWO RUN LEAD IN FIRST; N. E. SCORES IN 4TH AND 5TH

The Northeast team, champions of 1926, got away to a good start last evening by defeating the I. O. O. F. team in the opening game of the season by the score of 3 to 2 at the N. P. stadium.

The game developed into a pitching battle between Van Walk, N. E. moundster, and Sandgren, I. O. O. F. heaver. Van Walk allowed only three scattered hits while Sandgren allowed the same and struck out five men.

I. O. O. F. started the game by gaining a two-run lead in the first frame when Bernard singled to left, and followed up by stealing to second. F. Sandgren walked and was advanced on an out and both scored on J. Thompson's two-base hit to left.

Northeast came back in the fourth stanza to cross two men over the home plate. H. Swanson singled over short and was advanced to second when Jarboe walked. Howard hit for two bases, scoring Swanson and placing Jarboe on third, the latter scoring on an infield out.

The Northeast team chalked up another run in the fifth when Van Walk hit to center, advanced to second when Swanson walked and both runners advanced on Thon's infield out. Van Walk scored a moment later on a wild pitch by Fogelstrom.

Both pitchers tightened up in the pinches and showed cleverness in holding the heavy hitters down.

Fielding honors are awarded to Jarboe who pulled down two drives in deep short and A. Swanson, who knocked down a liner that was tagged for a single.

Sandgren was relieved in the fifth for Fogelstrom who did not allow a hit. His curves were well in control but his wild pitch gave Northeast a win.

CINCINNATI REDS VICTIMS OF AN UNEXPECTED COL-LAPSE

OTHERWISE NATIONAL LEAGUE TEAMS ARE RUNNING TRUE TO FORM

By HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, May 17.—As the second month of the major league pennant races gets under way, form is beginning to set the entries into their natural positions.

With the exception of the Cincinnati Reds, victims of an unexpected collapse, the teams in the National League are running true to form.

The National League race seems to be between New York, Pittsburgh and St. Louis with the Giants favorites. The real class of McGraw's team has been shown in the first inter-sectional skirmishes against the strong western clubs, in which the Giants looked even better than they did against the weaker eastern teams earlier in the season.

The development of the New York pitching staff has been one of the features of the spring. As long as the pitchers hold their present form the club has everything a championship team needs.

The Cincinnati club is not normally a last place club. Its position is due to bad breaks and the collapse of a formidable pitching staff. Jack Hendricks feel that his club will snap out of it but the snapping will have to be done quickly to be effective.

The Pirates are getting settled on their normal gait, with the pitchers improving. The Cardinals have been getting the best pitching in the league but their pitchers can't be expected to retain the same form all season. The fielding defense of the club is weak in spots.

American League managers are almost unanimous in the belief that nothing but a train wreck can keep the New York Yankees out of the world series.

The Yankees have the most powerful attack in the major leagues. It is a hustling young club, full of fight. The Chicago White Sox seem better placed than they deserve, but the team is smart and is getting good pitching. The Washington Senators are not in their proper place but they have been having pitching trouble and infield difficulties. When Walter Johnson is able to return to regular duty the club ought to do better, but it is losing valuable ground.

The Cleveland Indians have been the big disappointment in the American League as their powerful pitching staff has gone to pieces much as that of the Cincinnati Reds.

The Detroit Tigers look like contenders but too much should not be expected of the St. Louis Browns as Dan Howley, manager, admits he has no higher ambition for the year than to finish in the first division.

Yesterday's hero—Harold Wiltse, young left handed pitcher of the Boston Red Sox, who was knocked down by a vicious line drive from Bib Falk's bat but who picked up the ball and threw Falk out at first base before he was carried from the field unconscious.

The White Sox were on a batting spree in the second inning. They had scored five runs and Falk was up for the second time in the inning. Falk crashed a lined directly at the pitcher, knocking him flat on the mound. Wiltse, though plainly stunned, arose to his knees and threw it to first for the third out, thus stopping the rally. Then he fell over unconscious and his mates carried him from the field. He was revived in the clubhouse and his injuries were said to be slight.

McFayden took Wiltse's place on the mound and held the White Sox scoreless for the balance of the game but the second inning rally was enough to win for Chicago. The final score was 5 to 2.

The St. Louis Cardinals moved into second place in the national league race when Jess Haines won a pitching duel from Alex Ferguson and defeated the Phillies, 2 to 1. Haines gave the Phillies seven hits.

Brooklyn piled up an early lead by pounding Emil Yde out of the box and set down the Pirates, 9 to 5. Pittsburgh slammed Petty for 13 hits but failed to overcome the early Robin lead.

With four runs tied by Simmons and one each by Cobb and Cochrane—the Philadelphia Athletics out-slugged the St. Louis Browns and won, 10 to 8. The Browns got two homers, one each by Rice and Williams.

The New York Yankees held their comfortable lead in the American league pennant chase by defeating Detroit 6 to 2. Lou Gehrig pulled up to a tie with Babe Ruth in the home run contest by driving out his eighth homer of the season.

Kansas City Mo.—Two big innings counted for eleven of the Milwaukee Brewers' runs yesterday and the Blues lost 18 to 8. The Brewers' scored six in the first and five in the fourth. Six pitchers went in for Kansas City.

Minneapolis, Minn.—St. Paul blanked Minneapolis 4 to 0 to gain undisputed possession of first place in the American association. Betts allowed seven hits but had excellent fielding behind him to win.

SEMPER PARATUS CLUB PRESENTS LAST PROGRAM OF THE SEASON THURSDAY

PROGRAM WILL BE RE-GIVEN FOR BENEFIT OF JUNIOR CLASS SOON

SHAKESPEARE'S "TAMING OF THE SHREW" WAS ONE OF ENJOYABLE NUMBERS

The Semper Paratus club presented a program Thursday evening at the high school. Taking into consideration the heavy rain storm that evening the players were greeted by a good-sized and certainly appreciative audience. This program is to be re-given in the near future for the benefit of the Juniors who are anxious to pick up change at the present time, the Junior-Senior Banquet being set for Saturday. The program was as follows:
1. A vocal solo by Alta Storm, accompanied by Violet Stanley.
2. Two violin solos, "Minuet in G," "Minuet in A," by Victor Burgeois.
3. A clarinet solo by Julius Peterson. Both Victor and Julius were accompanied by Miss Rickard.
4. Cuttings from "The Taming of the Shrew." The characters were introduced and explained by Katherine Staub.
5. A reading by Helen Marie Stadlbauer and another by Katherine Albright. Miss Stadlbauer selected both readings and coached their presentation.
6. A piano solo by Celeste Johnson. Miss Johnson was forced by popular demand to give approximately three encores.
7. A reading by Helen Paine—also very successful.
8. And lastly, a drill, in which several girls took part.
This program ended the activities of the Semper Paratus club for the year. This organization, under the direction of Miss Oerting, was very successful throughout the year and proved both interesting and enjoyable for the students.

Lil' Bertram

Well, after having gotten the ol' pencil sharpened to my satisfaction I will inscribe a few well-chosen words. I tried to do this last nite but the radio was pushin' forth sweet music and I was listening and only that. They weren't jazz strains that blinded me to duty either but nice music—Sextette from Lucie, N'Elegy. Which reminds me of the Orpheum Circuit. They was an orchestra doing the rounds that would play California, here I come an' throw oranges into the pit. That was always the last No. and the leader would rise up and removing his shellacked derby announce "Now, next week, folks, we are going to revive the Anvil Chorus and throw horseshoes." They smothered him with a pair of ear muffs I believe.
The sheet is under new management. I guess—I haven't kept very good track of it lately but I figure it must still be running as I have not heard the angry howl of the enraged mob whose public voice has been choked. Raymie seems to be more or less fraternal with the new editor and he claims it would be the noble thing if I were to fill up the paper for him. I do admit that they have been a more or less lack of news.
However the Semper Paratus club ended the year amid a blaze of glory with a meeting in the back room Monday. An' the "prom" will come off on Saturday, as will the District Track Meet an' the annual will make its appearance soon after. And the Chemistry and Physics are going, no, have went on a picnic last nite. But these are all known facts.
Well, it seems there were two travelling men—O, gosh that's another story.
Y' know I was in the cities the other day an' was standing in the depot watching people go by an' I figure there must be an awful lot of funny people in the world.
Well—toodle oo.

B. H. S. 12, Aitkin 7

The local baseball team redeemed themselves last Wednesday when they defeated the Aitkin nine thus dividing the honors between the two towns for this season. Aitkin defeated the home boys earlier in the season but were unable to stand before the superior playing of the Brainerd boys when they returned the visit here.
In the first inning neither team scored but in the second and third Aitkin obtained a seven point lead thus making it rather hard for Brainerd.
Aitkin never obtained another run from then on and the locals steadily added up their runs to result in putting them on the top of the final count.
Swanson pitched a good game after the third inning and each man contributed his share in doing the hitting.
The locals' percentage now stands at 50 percent having won two games and lost two.
A fairly good crowd was at hand last Wednesday to urge the boys on and it is hoped that this spirit will be kept up during the remainder of the season.

A Challenge

We the students, of the French 2 class challenge a 1 other classes in possessing the largest number of girls still clinging to their long tresses.
We are very proud to have four girls that still preserve their crowning glory. Perhaps it would be well to name them. We have a very fair blonde, Francis Lawson; and three demi-brunettes, Fern and Sarah Lewis, and Maude Davis.
It seems that long hair enlarges or lengthens the brain as our long-haired students are the most brilliant.
Miss Bowers regrets that we don't wait for a few years until she can be classed as the fifth.

Junior Candy Sale

On last Friday the Juniors again conducted a Candy Sale. Home-made candy was in evidence during the morning but by noon was completely bought up. Pop, ice cream and bars were sold throughout the day. Two booths one in the upper and one in the lower hall, dispensed with goodies during the A. M. but when P. M. arrived the store had narrowed down to one small table in the lower hall—however it did a rushing business. The Juniors have just about enough dollars ($) now!

Jokes

Miss Amundsen: What kind of schools do they have in Denmark and what do they teach?
Joe C.: Oh, they teach everything and Agriculture II (too).
Vivian B.: Have you got any floor wax I can borrow?
Margaret S.: No, but I've got some sealing wax.
Vivian: Well, really, I don't care to wax the ceiling 'cause it's the floor we dance on.
1st Person: Say, do you know that beef is higher?
2nd Person: No, is it? Why is that? Are the pigs getting scarce?
Maes: Say, have you seen that new car? I forgot its name.
Lil: Auburn?
Maes: Naw, I don't mean the color!
Fair Enough
A portly gentleman entered a physician's office one morning and complained of feeling ill. The doctor looked at him a moment, then remarked:
"Well, I'll examine you for fifteen dollars."
"That's fair enough, doctor," replied the patient. "If you find it, I'll split it with you 50-50."
A Prayer
To grow a little wiser day by day,
To school my mind and body to obey,
To keep my inner life both clean and strong,
To free my lips from guile, my hands from wrong,
To shut the door on hate, and scorn, and pride,
To open, then, to love the windows wide,
To meet with cheerful heart what comes to me,
To turn life's discords into harmony,
To share some weary worker's heavy load,
To point some straying comrade to the road,
To know that what I have is not my own,
To feel that I am never quite alone—
This would I pray from day to day,
For then I know
My life will flow
In peace, until it be
God's will I go.

When the Scotchman finally reached the window he said:
"Gie us eight tickets for tonight."
"What price seats?" asked the ticket seller.
"Hoot mon, I dinna care. Gie us eight of the best seats in the hoos."
He got them and went his way.
The Jew came up to the window and started to pass by.
"Wait a minute, Mr. Goldsmith, said the ticket seller. "Don't you want tickets to 'The Miracle'?"
"No," replied the Jew. "I just saw one."
Right You Are, Tommy
Tommy was rather careless. When he went to bed at night clothing was scattered all over his bed room. One night after Tommy was tucked in bed, his mother patiently picked up his scattered garments.
"I wonder who it was," she remarked, "who never folded up his clothes when he went to bed."
"Why, Adam, of course," replied Tommy.

MISS RICKARD, SUPERVISOR OF MUSIC, GAVE A TALK ON MUSIC IN THE GRADE

HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA RENDERED SEVERAL INTERESTING SELECTIONS

The Parent-Teachers Associations in a joint meeting at the high school of all the schools in the city met in on Tuesday evening last week. Miss Rickard, supervisor of music in the public schools, gave a talk on the instruction of music in the grades. She explained how they first sing do-re-mi—learning to read notes, then words and lastly 2 and 3 parts. Several classes of children in the various stages of musical development sang as an illustration to the talk. The high school orchestra played.

WHO? WHAT? WHERE?

Now that the Seniors have no more cards to exchange, quiet reigns for a few days. Since they came out, your studies have been apt to be interrupted by, "Say, got any cards," "May I have one, Please," "How about exchanging?" "Save one for me," or "Gimme one, will ya."
Picnics seem to be quite the thing in the different classes now-a-days. The chemistry and physics classes hiked to Ahrens hill Monday night after school and indulged in weiners, buns, beans, potato salad, coffee and marshmallows to their hearts content.
Too many of these warm spring days and too many students will be getting too low marks.
The class prophecy will be acted out this year. This is another annual and very interesting tradition of the Senior class.
Marshal Young visited school for a few minutes last Thursday. He thinks the school is traveling the downward path since his class graduated last year. Most graduates seem to think that when they return for a visit. However, who still attend the school know better.
Writing in "Girl Grads" is another busy occupation going on in school.
Joe S.: "Only fools are positive."
Chub M.: "Are you sure?"
Joe: "I am positive."

One Hour with a MAYTAG -and a whole washing is done

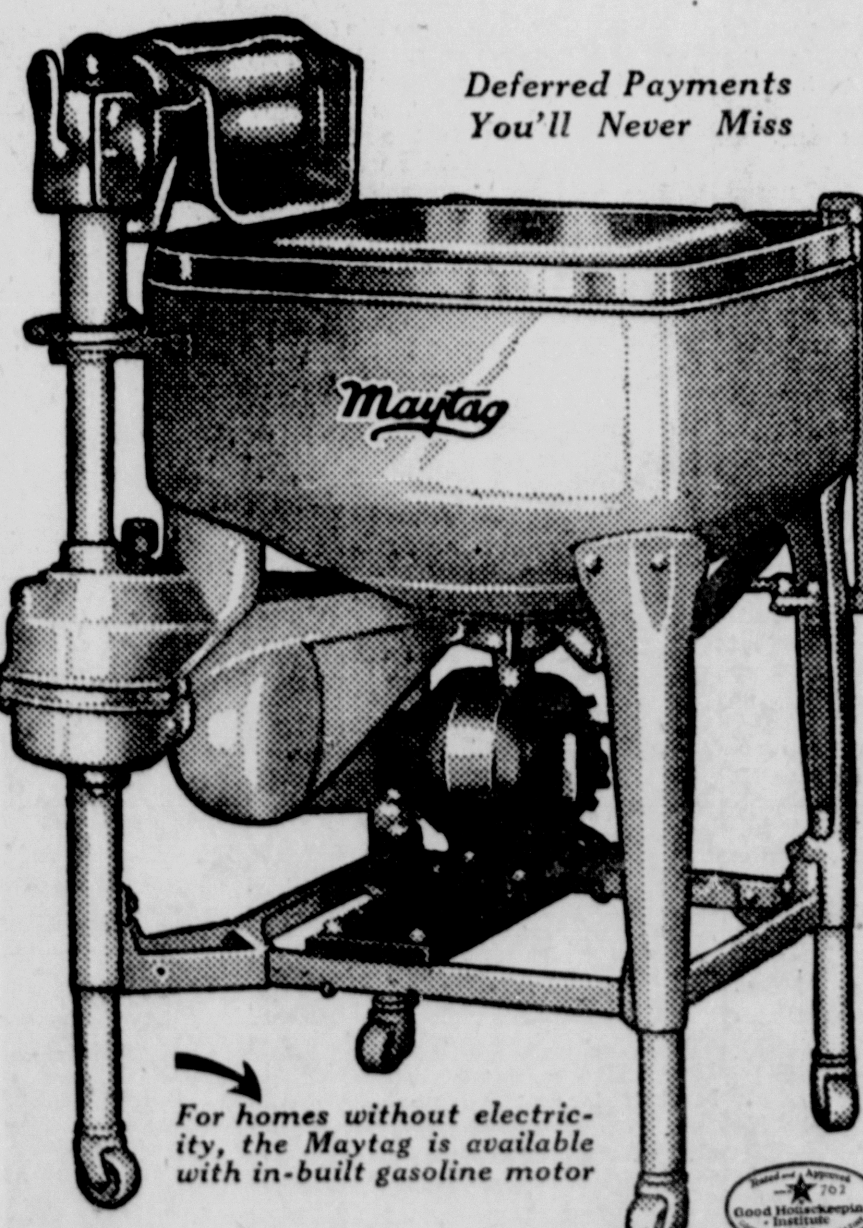

IMAGINE a washday measured in minutes instead of hours. When big tubfuls are washed in 3 to 7 minutes. When a whole big washing is done in one short hour.

When every garment is washed spotlessly clean without hand-rubbing even collars, cuffs and wristbands. When even greasy work-clothes and grimy rompers are washed clean as new in 10 minutes.

There is no changing of water during washing because of the heat-retaining nature of the Maytag's life-lasting, cast-aluminum tub, that drains and cleans itself in 30 seconds after the washing is done.

There is no hand-adjusting of the famous Maytag wringer that instantly adjusts itself to a handkerchief or a blanket and wrings both equally dry.

Deferred Payments You'll Never Miss

For homes without electricity, the Maytag is available with in-built gasoline motor

Phone

Try the Maytag next wash-day. See how much cleaner your clothes are washed. See how much time you save. See how much less effort is needed when a Maytag does your washing.

Phone the Maytag dealer now. He will gladly send a Maytag to your home without obligation or expense. Try it.

If it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

Chemistry Physics Picnic

Monday night at 4:00 p. m. the chemistry and physics classes gathered in front of the school for an inspection trip of the gas plant and then on to the river flats for a picnic.

With Mr. Gridley leading them they started off in high spirits. The trip through the plant was conducted by Mr. Sweet and it was through his courtesy that the students were allowed to take it. It was very interesting and all sorts of questions were asked and information was received.

From there the crowd hiked across the bridge and followed the river till they found a spot that was just the place for a perfect picnic.

Supper was started and when all was ready it was found to consist of wieners, buns, beans, potato salad, coffee, and marshmallows. Nothing could have tasted better.

Games were played, stories told and songs sung around the dying fire.

It must be said that it was an exceptionally fine picnic.

Senior Meeting

At the Senior meeting held Thursday a vote was taken to determine whether the class would leave a piano or an oil painting as a memorial to the high school. The vote was finally decided in favor of a piano. Choosing the memorial is one of the important events in the Senior year because it is not solely for the purpose of remembering the donor but to decorate the building and give the future classes the benefit of the gift.

Commercial Club

The Commercial club held a very successful candy sale last Tuesday afternoon. The purpose of this candy sale was to raise money for a Brainerdian picture and also for a picnic which will be held this coming Wednesday at Birchdale.

Picnics seem to be quite the thing in the different classes now-a-days. The chemistry and physics classes hiked to Ahrens hill Monday night after school and indulged in wieners, buns, beans, potato salad, coffee and marshmallows to their hearts content.

Too many of these warm spring days and too many students will be getting too low marks.

The class prophecy will be acted out this year. This is another annual and very interesting tradition of the Senior class.

Marshal Young visited school for a few minutes last Thursday. He thinks the school is traveling the downward path since his class graduated last year. Most graduates seem to think that when they return for a visit. However, who still attend the school know better.

Writing in "Girl Grads" is another busy occupation going on in school.

Chub M.: "Are you sure?"

Joe: "I am positive."

One Hour
with a MAYTAG
-and a whole washing is done

IMAGINE a washday measured in minutes instead of hours. When big tubfuls are washed in 3 to 7 minutes. When a whole big washing is done in one short hour.

When every garment is washed spotlessly clean without hand-rubbing even collars, cuffs and wristbands. When even greasy work-clothes and grimy rompers are washed clean as new in 10 minutes.

There is no changing of water during washing because of the heat-retaining nature of the Maytag's life-lasting, cast-aluminum tub, that drains and cleans itself in 30 seconds after the washing is done.

There is no hand-adjusting of the famous Maytag wringer that instantly adjusts itself to a handkerchief or a blanket and wrings both equally dry.

Try the Maytag next wash-day. See how much cleaner your clothes are washed. See how much time you save. See how much less effort is needed when a Maytag does your washing.

Phone the Maytag dealer now. He will gladly send a Maytag to your home without obligation or expense. Try it.

If it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

He said there was no such thing as a 100 percent Rotarian for that meant perfection.

Members at the luncheon also spoke in favor of a regular club publication.

THE STORY SO FAR

Amarillys Minton carries the memory of a childish escapade with her through girlhood. It taught her never to love her—and through it she found John Guido. She never forgets him and follows him to Italy where they manage to exchange assurances of their love. Then Amarillys comes home to prepare "The Magic Garden" for her Guido. She is supremely happy and with her daddy cannot wait the time when John Guido's violin shall again call her to the garden.

Then they went home and Amarillys went into the library and into her father's quarters to see what she could do for him. Just as she came out, she caught him squarely coming from her own particular suite of rooms. When she looked at him inquiringly, he said: "Amarillys, I was just casting my optics around to see if I could figure on anything else that I could put into your rooms that you would like to have. Could you help your old dad?"

Amarillys laughed and said: "Dad, don't let your affection take the form of spending more money on me. All I want you to do is just to love me. There isn't a thing in the world that I need in my rooms that I haven't got."

Then Amarillys went up to her father. Very softly, almost whispering, she said: "Father, do you suppose that she, do you suppose that Mother has anything in her life so precious as the thing we have? Do you suppose she's got love like ours? Do you think so, Father?"

She could feel her father's frame grow tense under her fingers. He stood very still a minute and then would not risk the chance of any woman living making you unhappy again, Amarillys. Not in the same house with you. If you are willing, after you go to John Guido, and maybe after Peter decides to select some charming girl and move back to his house, then maybe I might make the venture."

Amarillys slid from the table and stood between his knees and kissed him over and over and said: "Don't wait, Dad. If there is one single woman you are dead sure about, go and get her, bring her today, for all I care!"

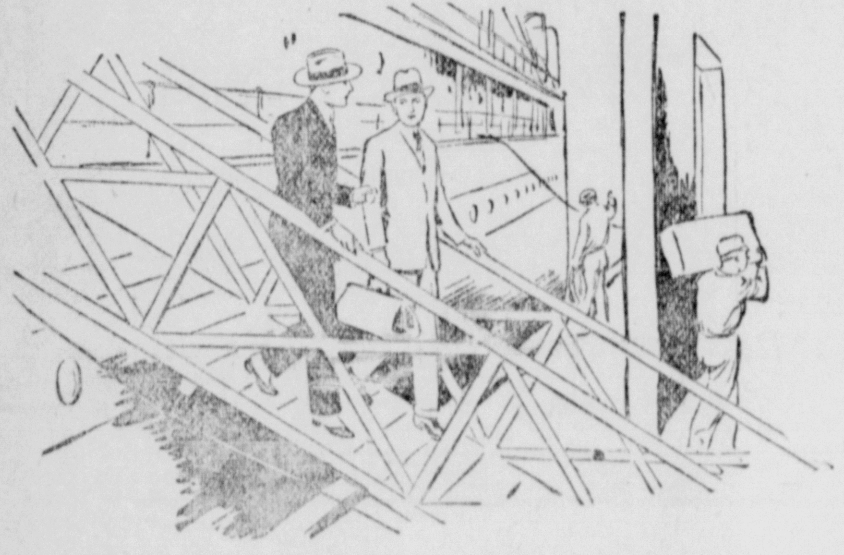

But Paul Minton shook his head. "You youngsters are too impetuous for me," he said. "I'll go slowly. I'll think about it, and if I am too lonely after you leave me, why then I'll see what I can do." Amarillys said: "That's a promise, Dad?"

And he answered her: "Yes, that's a promise," and Paul Minton put his arms around Amarillys and kissed her so hard that she felt that kiss half an hour afterward. He said: "I wonder to my soul if that young rascal has got the proper idea of exactly the kind of a girl that he is going to have the chance to win!"

And Amarillys laughed because that was such a joke. The idea that John Guido might not appreciate her!

So she laughed up at her father and she said: "Do you remember how he played 'Amarillys'? If he could play me like that, don't you worry, Dad! Don't you worry! There won't be any trouble about John Guido not appreciating me."

The remainder of those ten days Amarillys never remembered exactly how she lived through. She went to the dock alone to meet

They came down the gang-plank together.

he said: "No, Amarillys, I don't think she has. I know that she would not care for what we do. She only cares for fine clothes and jewels and to be worshipped."

"Sometimes," said Amarillys, "I feel as if maybe we had not served her right, as if maybe we should have gone to her and tried to force her to see our way."

Paul Minton laid his hands on Amarillys' shoulders and held her very tight.

"Amarillys," he said, "do you remember one time when I went away on business and was gone nearly a month and did not leave you any address because I said I would be traveling constantly? Well, Amarillys, I went to France and I hunted up your mother and I tried to tell her and I tried with all my heart and brain to get her to come back. But she did not want us. Amarillys, she did not want anything we had to offer. We won't ever mention it again, but you can feel your heart clean on that score. She has had her great chance, and scorned it. May God bless and save her and her Count."

Then he bent his head and kissed Amarillys very hard on the lips and turned and went to his own room. As she stood and watched him, she noticed that his shoulders sagged a little and that his head was bent slightly, and that it was growing very white. She realized that, love him as she might, think for him as she would, she was not going to be able to give him what she had to give John Guido. While he was young and while he was strong, there was no woman to bring to him her richest gifts of the heart and of the mind. Was he all the rest of his life to be a man defrauded, a man bereft of what it was his right to have? Amarillys ran after him and opened the door. She found him before his desk with his arms crossed and his head laid on them. She lifted up his arms and hopped on the desk and made a pillow of her lap to rest his head in. She combed her fingers through his hair and very unsteadily she said: "Dad, why don't you look around among the women you know? Why don't you see if somewhere you don't know one, or you can't find one, who would give to you what I am going to give to John Guido when he comes? Why don't you, Dad?"

Paul Minton sat back in his chair and lifted his head and looked at Amarillys with eyes of astonishment.

"Amarillys," he said, "the temptation has been big and strong for a good many years, but I so defrauded you in the beginning of your life, I was not going to take any risks of making anything unpleasant for you the rest of the way. So I would not risk it. I

He said: "Our car is always parked across here. Our driver knows where to come for me and it is just possible that my dad or my sister will be in the car waiting. So I'll go. But remember, John, you are to come on Monday for that party on my yacht that I am going to give to the fellows as my welcome home."

John Guido laid his hand on Peter's shoulder and said: "Thank you. I will be wherever you tell me to meet you."

Then they shook hands all over again and Peter turned in the direction that he expected to find the car waiting. John Guido and his father turned toward the conveyances to hire and distinctly Amarillys heard John Forrester say: "First thing we do we'll go to the bank and get the keys to the little old place."

John Guido answered: "I hope we find it exactly the way we left it." Then they were gone.

LINDBERGH NOW WAITING FOR GOOD WEATHER

Mahoney, 26-year-old president of the Ryan Aircraft Company, builders of Lindbergh's plane.

"It's all up to him," Mahoney reiterated a half dozen times. "He's doing it."

While simplicity governs Lindbergh's organization, Byrd's camp is remarkable for its businesslike, complicated and elaborate organization.

A kitchen and dining room have been set up in the hangar to feed the 40 or more men making up the organization and attendants. Adjoining it is a telegraph room where, through courtesy of the Byrd-Rodman Wanamaker interests, wires are available to the newspapers and there are desks for the reporters. A telephone exchange has been installed.

Nearby is an office used by Commander Byrd. There he studies the plans for the flight, including both the government and special weather charts, the latter made by his own meteorologist every day. Through the courtesy of the Radio Corporation of America and the Independent Wireless Company, weather reports are delivered to the aviators from ships at sea. They are analyzed, a government weather expert makes charts and predictions, and in the case of Byrd, a private expert makes his own report.

Byrd has made available to the other fliers all of his private weather information. Byrd himself goes around watching, full though unfurnished. Reports that Lindbergh or the Bellanca are about to go—something that happens daily—come to him but he pays no attention. He says two or three more tests must be made before he sends his plane definitely on its way to Paris, and that seems to settle it.

Except for this: A year ago Byrd was in Spitzbergen under circumstances not much different as far as the competitive element is concerned, from those now obtaining here. The Amundsen-Ellsworth-Nobile expedition's dirigible Norge was there. Both Byrd's airplane and the Norge were headed for the North Pole. There was lots of talk in this country about who would go first. As far as anyone in the Amundsen-Ellsworth-Nobile camp knew, it would be days before Byrd could take off.

But one morning Byrd and Floyd Bennett, his pilot, got up, put on their coats and hats, started their motor and took a ride to the North Pole while the Amundsen-Ellsworth-Nobile expedition stood and watched them sail away, perhaps just a little goggle-eyed at their seeming audacity.

So aviators are pretty well convinced that any time Byrd is ready he'll get up and fly away.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, May 17.—The revenue cutter Daisy returned today from a searching cruise of Placentia Bay and reported no trace of Captains Charles Nungesser and Francois Coll, who left Paris a week ago Sunday to fly to New York. Nungesser and Coll should have reached their destination in 34 hours.

Many new rumors from the southern section of the Avalon peninsula, similar to those which earlier came from Harbor Grace and Whitebourne, circulated today.

Protests and says 'state has framed me'

Salem, Ore., May 17.—(UP)—Protesting that "the state has framed me," Albert Brownlee, 26, world war veteran and convicted murderer of Eston Hooker, young postman, was hanged at the state prison here this morning.

The trap was sprung at 8:29 a. m., one minute ahead of schedule.

And he had grown oh! so tall! He had grown so handsome! His eyes were shining with such a happy light and he was laughing as he talked. He was turning his head to say things to John Forrester looking big and fine behind him as they came down the gangway. They were not very many yards from her when they stopped and Peter shook hands with both of them.

He said: "Our car is always parked across here. Our driver knows where to come for me and it is just possible that my dad or my sister will be in the car waiting. So I'll go. But remember, John, you are to come on Monday for that party on my yacht that I am going to give to the fellows as my welcome home."

John Guido laid his hand on Peter's shoulder and said: "Thank you. I will be wherever you tell me to meet you."

Then they shook hands all over again and Peter turned in the direction that he expected to find the car waiting. John Guido and his father turned toward the conveyances to hire and distinctly Amarillys heard John Forrester say: "First thing we do we'll go to the bank and get the keys to the little old place."

John Guido answered: "I hope we find it exactly the way we left it." Then they were gone.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept constantly "syringed" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even if the child is chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens or upsets the most delicate system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any drug store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Ill., for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

THE STORY SO FAR

Amaryllis Minton carries the memory of a childhood escape with her through girlhood. It taught her how to love her—and through it she found John Guido. She never forgets him and follows him to Italy where they manage to exchange assurances of their love. Then Amaryllis comes home to prepare "The Magic Garden" for her Guido. She is supremely happy and with her daddy cannot wait the time when John Guido's violin shall again call her to the garden.

Then they went home and Amaryllis went into the library and into her father's quarters to see what she could do for him. Just as she came out, she caught him squarely coming from her own particular suite of rooms. When she looked at him inquiringly, he said: "Amaryllis, I was just casting my optics around to see if I could figure on anything else that I could put into your rooms that you would like to have. Could you help your old Dad?"

Amaryllis laughed and said: "Dad, don't let your affection take the form of spending more money on me. All I want you to do is just to love me. There isn't a thing in the world that I need in my rooms that I haven't got."

Then Amaryllis went up to her father. Very softly, almost whispering, she said: "Father, do you suppose that Mother has anything in her life so precious as the thing we have? Do you suppose she's got love like ours? Do you think so, Father?"

She could feel her father's frame grow tense under her fingers. He stood very still a minute and then

"Sometimes," said Amaryllis, "I feel as if maybe we had not served her right, as if maybe we should have gone to her and tried to force her to see our way."

Paul Minton laid his hands on Amaryllis' shoulders and held her very tight.

"Amaryllis," he said, "do you remember one time when I went away on business and was gone nearly a month and did not leave you any address because I said I would be traveling constantly? Well, Amaryllis, I went to France and I hunted up your mother and I tried to tell her and I tried with all my heart and brain to get her to come back. But she did not want us, Amaryllis. She did not want anything we had to offer. We won't ever mention it again, but you can feel your heart clean on that score. She has had her great chance, and scorned it. May God bless and save her and her Count."

Then he bent his head and kissed Amaryllis very hard on the lips and turned and went to his own room. As she stood and watched him, she noticed that his shoulders sagged a little and that his head was bent slightly, and that it was growing very white. She realized that, love him as she might, think for him as she would, she was not going to be able to give him what she had to give John Guido. While he was young and while he was strong, there was no woman to bring to him her richest gifts of the heart and of the mind. Was he all the rest of his life to be a man defrauded, a man bereft of what it was his right to have? Amaryllis ran after him and opened the door. She found him before his desk with his arms crossed and his head laid on them. She lifted up his arms and hopped on the desk and made a pillow of her lap to rest his head in. She combed her fingers through his hair and very unsteadily she said: "Dad, why don't you look around among the women you know? Why don't you see if somewhere you don't know one, or you can't find one, who would give to you what I am going to give to John Guido when he comes? Why don't you, Dad?"

Paul Minton sat back in his chair and lifted his head and looked at Amaryllis with eyes of astonishment.

"Amaryllis," he said, "the temptation has been big and strong for a good many years, but I so defrauded you in the beginning of your life, I was not going to take any risks of making anything unpleasant for you the rest of the way. So I would not risk it. I

Peter's boat. She promised her father to bring him straight to the office. She went alone because she had a secret in her heart, a secret about that cable. She had not told her father that there was a possibility that Peter might have been friends with John Guido and they might leave the boat together. She did not want to meet John Guido on a dock, in a crowd of people, before Peter. She could not endure that. She could not meet him anywhere for the first time except in the wayward garden of magic.

So she wore a very long coat with a very high collar and a very much pulled down hat, and a very heavy veil. Peter would not have known her if he had been told that she was Amaryllis. Off at one side, as close as she dared come, she stood watching and waiting, and presently, down the gang-plank together they came, and my! but they were fine young men! Peter had grown up. He seemed so tall for Peter and his clothing had such a distinguished look. She was so proud of Peter! She swept him with one comprehensive glance, then leaned back against whoever it was that was behind her with little gasps of ecstasy slipping between her lips because, after all, your brother is your brother, but beside the brother there was John Guido!

And he had grown oh! so tall! He had grown so handsome! His eyes were shining with such a happy light and he was laughing as he talked. He was turning his head to say things to John Forester looking big and fine behind him as they came down the gangway. They were not very many yards from her when they stopped and Peter shook hands with both of them.

He said: "Our car is always parked across here. Our driver knows where to come for me and it is just possible that my dad or my sister will be in the car waiting. So I'll go. But remember, John, you are to come on Monday for that party on my yacht that I am going to give to the fellows as my welcome home."

John Guido laid his hand on Peter's shoulder and said: "Thank you. I will be wherever you tell me to meet you."

Then they shook hands all over again and Peter turned in the direction that he expected to find the car waiting. John Guido and his father turned toward the conveyances to hire and distinctly Amaryllis heard John Forester say: "First thing we do we'll go to the bank and get the keys to the little old place."

John Guido answered: "I hope we find it exactly the way we left it." Then they were gone.

Mahoney, 26-year-old president of the Ryan Aircraft Company, builders of Lindbergh's plane.

"It's all up to him," Mahoney reiterated a half dozen times. "He's doing it."

While simplicity governs Lindbergh's organization, Byrd's camp is remarkable for its businesslike, complicated and elaborate organization. A kitchen and dining room have been set up in the hangar to feed the 40 or more men making up the organization and attendants. Adjoining it is a telegraph room where, through courtesy of the Byrd-Rodman Wanamaker interests, wires are available to the newspapers and there are desks for the reporters. A telephone exchange has been installed.

Nearby is an office used by Commander Byrd. There he studies the plans for the flight, including both the government and special weather charts, the latter made by his own meteorologist every day. Through the courtesy of the Radio Corporation of America and the Independent Wireless Company, weather reports are delivered to the aviators from ships at sea. They are analyzed, a government weather expert makes charts and predictions, and in the case of Byrd, a private expert makes his own report.

Byrd has made available to the other fliers all of his private weather information. Byrd himself goes around watchful though unflustered. Reports that Lindbergh or the Bellanca are about to go—something that happens daily—come to him but he pays no attention. He says two or three more tests must be made before he sends his plane definitely on its way to Paris, and that seems to settle it.

Except for this: A year ago Byrd was in Spitzbergen under circumstances not much different as far as the competitive element is concerned, from those now obtaining here. The Amundsen-Ellsworth-Nobile expedition's dirigible Norge was there. Both Byrd's airplane and the Norge were headed for the North Pole. There was lots of talk in this country about who would go first. As far as anyone in the Amundsen-Ellsworth-Nobile camp knew, it would be days before Byrd could take off.

But one morning Byrd and Floyd Bennett, his pilot, got up, put on their coats and hats, started their motor and took a ride to the North Pole while the Amundsen-Ellsworth-Nobile expedition stood and watched them sail away, perhaps just a little goggle-eyed at their seeming audacity.

So aviators are pretty well convinced that any time Byrd is ready he'll get up and fly away.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, May 17.—The revenue cutter Daisy returned today from a searching cruise of Placentia Bay and reported no trace of Captains Charles Nungesser and Francois Coll, who left Paris a week ago Sunday to fly to New York. Nungesser and Coll should have reached their destination in 36 hours.

Many new rumors from the southern section of the Avalon peninsula, similar to those which earlier came from Harbor Grace and Whitebourne, circulated today.

PROTESTS AND SAYS 'STATE HAS FRAMED ME'

Salem, Ore., May 17.—(UP)—Protesting that "the state has framed me," Albert Brownlee, 26, world war veteran and convicted murderer of Eston Hooker, young postman, was hanged at the state prison here this morning.

The trap was sprung at 8:29 a. m., one minute ahead of schedule.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL
AT THE AGE OF 83

Mother! It's
Cruel to "Physic"
Your Child

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even if the child is chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gives, sickens or upsets the most delicate system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any drug store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Ill., for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.
